"The Priority of Prophetic Preaching"

There is something audacious, attractive, and alluring about the assertiveness of "Prophetic Preaching." It may be old, but it is not outdated. It may be ancient, but it is not antiquated. Unfortunately, as sub-Saharan descendants of the diaspora and mfecane, we have very little documentation regarding our rich and noble heritage. As a result, in the oral tradition of our West African forefathers, the role of the "djeli" or "preacher" becomes paramount to our religious and cultural experiences. Prophetic preaching has enabled people of African descent to survive the incorrigible Middle Passage, the injustice of antebellum, the inequities of Jim Crow, the illusion of Reconstruction, and the intolerance of both de jure and de facto segregation.

By intonation, repetition, and pace, the prophetic dimension of preaching will challenge both the sacred and secular. It will expose to the saint that which is theologically essential and reveal to the sinner that which is divinely inspired. It not only confronts the status quo, but offers biblical insight regarding the human condition on how to overcome despair with determination and hope.

Preaching in its ecumenical sense unabashedly proclaims the death, burial, and resurrection of our Lord Jesus Christ. Furthermore, it invites the hearer to become an active participant in the fellowship of the forgiven; otherwise known as the "Church." It is through the preaching of the Word, that the Church calls the world to be responsible towards God's divine act of reconciliation. It is for this reason Karl Barth has described the Church as being "God's subjective realization of the atonement."

However, let it be understood that the ethos, logos, and pathos of preaching is not found in the volume of voice nor the tenor and tone in which a message is delivered. While a preacher must speak as a "dying man to dying men," he dare not speak the things of God too easily. He must speak with all the humility that is appropriate to his limited vision, but he must speak. It should be incandescently clear that a time comes when silence is betrayal. There is an invisible "Book of Life" which faithfully records our vigilance or our neglect. God's hope for humanity is a serious and solemn transaction. Therefore, prophetic preaching is far too important to give anything less than reverence and respect when addressing the souls of men.

Finally, the preacher must allow others to scrutinize him as he experiences what F. Scott Fitzgerald calls "the dark night of the soul where it is always three o'clock in the morning." He is always cognizant of the fact that serious preaching will arouse serious conflicts. Contrary winds and discord with the demonic are descriptors which have no detours. Omar Khayyam was right when he said "The moving Finger writes and having writ moves on." But through it all, the preacher never fails to lift up the risen Redeemer in the "beauty of His holiness and in the holiness of His beauty." Perhaps Luke said it best in Acts 14:22 when he says: "...we must through much tribulation enter into the kingdom of God."

One must always remember that preaching produces peril and pain, healing and hurt, trials and triumphs, heartaches and hallelujahs. In the final analysis it should be clearly affirmed that He who calls us to this work where dust and divinity operate in creative tension, He promises us nothing except His abiding presence.

Needless to say, there are many great preachers of the African American Church of Christ whose names are absent from this limited index.

We have attempted to be as unambiguous as possible, identifying the names of those mentioned in previous listings and those of whom our current research has produced.

Apologies are given if someone you know has been omitted from this list.

If you would desire to submit additional names to this index listing, please refer to the Executive Committee of the Churches of Christ National Lectureship.

Let it also be understood that this is not a "Who's Who" of deceased gospel preachers. It is only an attempt to mention the names of those who have passed on from this earthly life.

Without doubt and as time progresses, this compilation will become more exhaustive. However, it is our hope that future generations will remember the sacrifices of those who preceded them, so that the visible kingdom of God might continue to prosper.

We pray that the young men of today, who decide to dedicate their lives to the prophetic proclamation of the gospel of Christ will do so because they love the Lord, they love the Church, and they love God's people.

"The harvest truly is plenteous, but the labourers are few..."

Matthew 9:37

"I charge thee therefore before God, and the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing and his kingdom; Preach the word; be instant in season, out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort with all longsuffering and doctrine."

II Timothy 4:1, 2
